

Environmental Manifesto

At Agristo, we produce frozen potato products and are part of a food chain that has an impact on people, the environment and society. Guided by our purpose “We cultivate growth” we see sustainability as an opportunity to create long-term value for our organisation, our value chain and our Potatoholics, within the planetary boundaries in which we operate. Through excellence, innovation and inspiration, we strive for sustainable growth together with our employees, customers, suppliers, neighbours, authorities and other stakeholders. Caring for one another, our surroundings and the environment is embedded in the way we work and serves as a strategic compass for our environmental choices.

We are committed to actively protecting the environment and preventing pollution. To this end, we systematically identify our environmental impact and take measures to control and continuously improve it. In line with the environmental priorities of our Double Materiality Analysis, our focus is on climate action, responsible water management, circularity and regenerative agriculture. We do this by using water, energy and raw materials sustainably, limiting emissions and nuisance, maximising the valorisation of waste and by-products, and supporting more sustainable practices across our value chain.

We translate our ambitions into concrete actions through environmental objectives, action plans and measurable indicators. These are aligned with Agristo’s context, our significant environmental aspects, stakeholder expectations, environmental obligations and the material sustainability topics identified for Agristo. We monitor our performance, evaluate progress and convert results into improvement actions that support operational efficiency, innovation and long-term resilience.

We take our environmental responsibility seriously and strive to comply with all applicable environmental obligations. We therefore closely monitor legislation, regulations and permit conditions. Through our legal register, internal controls, audits and management reviews, we safeguard our compliance.

Continuous improvement is central to our approach. We therefore regularly evaluate our environmental management system and adjust it where needed to further strengthen our environmental performance. Management takes an active and exemplary role in this and provides, within the organisation’s possibilities, the necessary resources to achieve our ambitions. We aim to embed sustainability in daily operations and in future investments, so that environmental performance improves together with the growth of Agristo.

This environmental policy statement is an integral part of our environmental management system and is managed as documented information. It is regularly evaluated and reviewed whenever significant changes occur to ensure it remains up to date and effective. We also actively communicate this statement within the organisation and make it available to relevant stakeholders. The policy applies within the defined scope of Agristo’s environmental management system, covering the activities, products, services, sites and processes over which Agristo has control or influence.

Together, we turn ambition into action, responsibility into results, and work every day towards a more sustainable future for people, the environment, our value chain and Agristo.
